MOST RELEVANT FOREIGN EXPERIENCES

- 1991 » England. My first encounter with a major capital. The impact was immense.
- 1993 » Inter rail during summer all around western Europe. The encounter with the European museums; the Mediterranean culture and Florence.
- 1996 » Barcelona. I was in love with Dalí. Picasso and Gaudí joined in. For a long time it was, along with London and Edinburgh, my favourite city. Stopped charting.
- 1998 » New York. After the plastic Florida, the rough iron Big Apple. For my astonishment, it met all my great expectations. The Chrysler sets the pace.
- 2001 » Venice. The Erasmus. To live Venice was my most spiritual experience (closely followed by my The Dark Side of The Moon sessions). Wondered the Italian land from Rome to Pompeii, Slovenia and Croatia. Yet, nothing like those St. Marks square sunsets.
- 2002 » Boston. After the degree, the autumn in Massachusetts. Boston sets the perfect Euro/American mix. Spent a month there alone. Finally understood that baseball over a Corona. Then back to NY. Rainy ground zero. Rainy America.
- 2003 » Patagonia Express. Rio. Then a 10 000 Km adventure from South Brazil, Uruguay and the great Argentinean landscape to cross the Andes. Too bad we crashed the car in the desert before making it to Chile. Tough days. Out of this world memories. The Andes Condor and the Pacific. We made it!
- 2004 » Cuba. I don't smoke, but couldn't help the charm. Crossing southern territory, its all you dreamed about the bare naked Caribbean. Watch your bag though!
- 2005 » Chicago. Broadway Malyan Design Forum. If you are an enthusiast of Wright (I am), a fan of the American Skyscraper (I am) and a blues lover (I am) you're in for a treat!
- 2006 » Huambo, Angola. An emotional journey through the Africa where my parents were married and my brothers were born. After 30 years of pointless civil war, my father was back to the place dreams took him every so often. To see the smiles and sheer humble humanity of that punished people made me think a lot. And the Savannah, of course. My father sleeps better now. I don't.
